Cabretta Skins.

Salem Evening News

Peabody sheepskin tanners asked the ways and means committee to strike the tariff off cabretta skins. Tanners claimed that cabretta skins should be admitted free of tariff charges, because they do not compete with any American product. They benefit the shoe and leather trade, and, consequently, the people. The Peabody's oldest Odd Fellow was 90 years old Friday Aug. 27, 1915. He was born in Marblehead, Aug. 27, 1825, and was christened in old St. Michael's Church, Marblehead, where George Washington had been married. At the age of 18 he embarked as a fisherman to the Grand Banks. He remained at this work for 12 years. On Dec. 12, 1853, a squall came up which drove the Cod-Fish Leather.

Salem Evening News

At a leather lecture in the Y.M.C.A. Saturday, April 17, 1909, William Armstrong showed the skin of the cod-fish, which had been tanned for experimental purposes at his factory. The cod-fish leather is much thicker than the average person would expect and it is quite strong. In April 1909 there was no market for cod-fish

Name of Coleman was recently given to a street in Kingscroft. The street had been known as King Street, but because of confusion, since the old King St. is off Lowell St., the name was changed to Coleman St. in honor of Philip H. Coleman, chairman of the board of selectmen who served on the Town Board longer than any other citizen.
